INTRODUCTORY.

On the general map of "Private Claims in Wayne County" it will be noticed that the first settlers of this section of the country occupying those claims displayed a uniform taste in selecting a strip of land commencing far back in the country, and running as near perpendicularly as possible to the Detroit River or its tributaries, the Rouge or Connors Creek, which enabled them to make the Detroit River the principal rendezvous, before streets, wagon roads or rail roads crossed their domains.

The same tendency was evidently prevailing later on when, in 1806, a plan was adopted for laying out the nucleus of this city, known under the name of "Governor and Judges Plan." Broad avenues were laid out to meet in a common centre, the present Grand Circus Park, with a large square for assembling of the militia, called the "Campus Martius," where subsequently the City Hall was erected for the transactions of the city and county's business; while in the immediate neighborhood churches, schools, mercantile business places and private offices supplied the remaining wants of the then embryo city. Real estate business must have been slack at that time, and maps very scarce, for not even one copy can be found now of this original plat or plan of this city.

Any one desiring information in regard to lands in this county had to go for it to the Registry of Deeds, which was not so very cumbersome in the beginning, but became largely so lately, when the aspirants for the perusal of those records grew too multitudinous, and the records of subdivisions themselves very complicated. An urgent want was felt for an atlas that, in its compilation, would be a true copy of the maps and plats on record, which is tried to be supplanted by this work. Valuable copies of original surveys, not on record in any of the county offices, have been added, which, together with the indexing feature of the work, will enable the most uninitiated to soon find the required information in regard to former and present shape and location of lands in the county; and this, too, at home or his office, now miles away from the city hall, the former common business centre.

The character of the work complies with the directions given by the Board of Super isors in their session during October 1891, to which body I express my thanks for their aid; especially to those supervisors who assisted me in compiling the work, and whose names appear on the maps and plats of their respective districts.

I have to refer here particularly to the great kindness of Mr. Clarence M. Burton, who not only placed his voluminous record at my disposal for the compilation of this work, but also gave personally all required information whenever called upon. If, with all the assistance rendered, trivial deviations should still exist in this work they will be carefully eliminated in the annual corrections of the atlas, which will occur during January, when to applicants all changes during the year will be recorded in one color, colors varying every year.

This is a detailed plat map of Wayne County, Michigan, showing land parcels, owners, and various geographical features. The map is divided into sections numbered 1 through 36. Owners' names and acreage are listed for many parcels. Key features include the Detroit River to the west, the St. Clair River to the south, and the city of Detroit to the northwest. The map also shows the locations of various towns and villages, such as Ecorse, River Rouge, and Dearborn. The map is a historical document, likely from the late 19th or early 20th century, used for land ownership and taxation purposes.

Conservator's Report
Bentley Historical Library

Title: Wayne County 1893 Volumes 1 & 2

Received: Book bound with tunnel-back style binding. Cover was 3/4 leather with cloth sides. Binding had been repaired previously. Leather was abraded. Pages had been backed with cheesecloth and clay. Joints were broken. Back was free and 60% void. Headbands were free. Book was sewn all along over recessed cords. Sewing was sound. Some leaves loose, creased and coming free from backing. Paper was acidic and brittle. Boards were of laminated board.

Treatment: Picked book to pieces. Washed leaves in water to remove from backing. Flattened. Mended tears. Laminated. Guarded pages and stubbed for thickness. Added new endsheets. Rebound in new cover of full cloth. Rebound in new scrapbook-style binding.

Materials: Filtered water. PROMATCO heavy duty endsheet paper. Adeneco Corex span nylon heatset tissue. Jade #834-403N PVA adhesive. Niddegan endsheet paper. Davey "Red Label" binder's board. Canvas cloth. Pyroxylin-impregnated library buckram. 23K gold. McBee sawtooth lockpins.

Date work completed: November 2002

Signed: Dianna R. Borci
